Soviets Kill 3,000 Nazis Along Front

MOSCOW, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Red Army killed more than 3,000 Germans in the last 24 hours, according to a statement issued by the Soviet press, while holding solidly along the wintry front and taking the initiative at some points, today's early war communique reported.

The official report said the Germans in the last two days spent 1,000 lives in futile efforts to break through the Soviet lines. The Red Army took an important town on the Volkhov front in the Leningrad sector where the Russians had led the initiative and advanced after a long period of relative calm.

A like number of Nazis were sacrificed Monday in renewed attacks on the Stalingrad front, the report said, and the invaders made no headway as their siege of the city climaxed in the morning, pushing week.

The Russians even reported that their gains purchased at an appalling cost a few days ago in one part of Stalingrad were nullified by counter-attacks which showed the enemy from a line he occupied two weeks ago.

Another slight Russian gain was reported in the mid-Caucasian area southeast of Natchik where only a few weeks ago the Axis threatened to effect a major breakthrough toward the great Soviet oil stores.

Today's War Moves

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
Rome today reported that the great American naval victory in the Solomons, while not necessarily decisive, certainly puts a brighter aspect on the American position in the Pacific and might even serve to shorten the war there.

The score announced by the navy was 23 ships to eight in our favor. The engagement reported has been compared by some commentators to the Battle of Leyte in the last war. Whether the comparison is justified it is too soon to tell.

If it was justified, the importance of the victory would be tremendous. The British were in a sense defeated in the Battle of Jutland, since they lost more ships and even sank the battle fleet.

Admiral Killed In Solomons

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Norman Scott of Kirkwood, Mo. 53, and Captain Cecil Young, 48, of Coronado, Calif., were killed in the night naval battle in the Solomons Islands on Tuesday. The United States navy department announced today.

Scott was in command of a naval unit and the engagement and Young was the holder of the Medal of Honor for heroism at Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941. The commander of Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan's flagship, the USS Callaghan, was reported by navy yesterday shortly before announcement that American naval forces had scored a major victory over the Japanese armada.

Highway Opening

Hon. Ian MacKenzie, minister of pensions and national health, who will represent the Minister MacKenzie King at the ceremony opening the Alaska Highway at the Alaska-Yukon boundary on Friday. Mr. MacKenzie flew north Tuesday, from Edmonton airport.

Minister Lauds Alaska Highway Marvel Of Age

The United States and Canada are more than good neighbors these days. The two nations are brothers-in-arms, waging a life-and-death struggle against a common enemy, and the builders of the Canada-Alaska Highway have made an enduring contribution to the welfare of both nations.

This is the essence of a message from Prime Minister MacKenzie King to be delivered at the ceremony opening the Alaska-Yukon highway, by Hon. Ian MacKenzie, minister of pensions and national health, representing the Canadian government. The ceremony is scheduled for the Alaska-Yukon boundary on Friday of this week.

A huge government "carry-all" was at work along Jasper avenue clearing the snow from the street and carrying it away in one operation.

Provincial government highway officials reported that main highways in Northern Alberta were still blocked, although snow-clearing equipment was steadily being used to clear the roads.

Equipment used in clearing the roads was being used to clear the roads.

Yanks Sink 23 Ships Mighty U.S. Fleet Smashed From Balkans

Report Hitler Plans New Thrust at Suez

By ROBERT BUNNELL
LONDON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Competent foreign military and diplomatic sources said today that Hitler is preparing a new thrust from the Balkans against the Middle East and Suez in the hope of countering the American-British campaign in North Africa.

These informants, who must remain anonymous, said they were in receipt of reports that Hitler had withdrawn, or was withdrawing more than 40 divisions, 16 of them armored, from the Russian front.

First details of the battle that raged from Nov. 13 to 15 were released by the navy last night. Already the victory is hailed by naval officers unofficially as the greatest of the war thus far, and perhaps of modern times.

Thus, in 11 months of war, the largest naval battle since the sinking of the Japanese battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, eight crowded transports and four cargo ships, American losses were given as two light cruisers, one destroyer and 365 ships sunk in war.

Two Priests Face Charges Of Espionage

DETROIT, Nov. 17. — (AP) —

Two priests of the Rumanian Orthodox church, one of them a naturalized Canadian who, investigators said had sought to arrange entrance into the United States for former King Carol and Magda Lupescu, were indicted along with an editor of Rumanian

The priests are Rev. Glighaerie Moraru of Dearborn, Mich., identified in the indictment as leader in North America of the Free Rumania movement; and Rev. Stephan Opreanu of Detroit. Opreanu and George Zamfir, Detroit editor of a Romanian publications, were named as agents of Moraru.

DETAINED AS ALIEN

The indictment charges Moraru started the free Rumanian movement in March, 1941, at Montreal, and continued his activities until last Oct. 23, when he was detained.

Louis M. Hopping, assistant district attorney, said Moraru twice visited the former King Carol of Rumania in Mexico and received $13,000 from him to further the movement.

One of the four counts in the indictment charges violation of the Espionage act. The others alleged the defendants acted as agents of an enemy power, failed to register as foreign agents, and disseminated propaganda without labelling it as such or furnishing files to the gov-

More Fighting French

The situation in North Africa is clearing, Darlan, defying Petain's orders but perhaps carrying out the Marshall's real desire, has proclaimed himself civil administrator of the French colonies. General Eisenhower says only that the arrangement "seems to be working well so far"; which is a long way from saying he is putting unbounded confidence in the Darlan conversion.

More important is the fact that General Giraud has been named military leader of the French forces and is engaged in building up an army of French and native troops, to be armed by the Allies, and which he says will "Co-operate with and join the Allied High Command and will whatever part in the final offensive that is entrusted to us."

This is a straight-forward statement from a man whose word is not under discount. Giraud has no obligations to the Nazis, who would pay a heavy price for his prophesies. He is doing all in his power to align himself with General de Gaulle and the Fighting French. He is giving every proof of his quality and dependability in clearing the resistance that French soldiers in Tunisia, under his command, are offering to the Axis troops hastily thrown into Bizerte and Tunis.

If it had produced no other immediate result, the opening of the Algerian front is worth while because of the show-down it brought about in and with Vichy.

The cabinet of shams has gone, and its fallaciousness is exposed. Despite counter-attacks and suppression of the news, a new spirit of resistance in France. In Corsica the Italian invaders have met with guerrilla opposition. In North Africa, pre-empted neutrality and actual hostilities have given way to alignment with the Allies.

Frenchmen, as a powerful organized force in French territory, are thus to have a hand in freeing France and restoring its colonial empire. The Vichy governor and officials at Dakar must be wondering whether they too had not better dissociate themselves from that regime and take their stand alongside their compatriots in Morocco, Algeria and Tunis.

One Handicap Gone

Captain Lyttleton, Britain's minister of production, states that aircraft production in Britain has "far passed the total Axis output."

This very definite statement is as surprising as it is heartening. So far as they can be pressed into service, the German and facilities of the enemy countries are building planes for Hitler, while German and Italian factories are working at top speed. If the statement includes the estimated output of Japanese plants, the achievement of the British builders is more than remarkable.

On the Russian front, in North Africa, and in the South Pacific, there is gratifying evidence that the Axis handicap of superior air power is a thing of the past.

The "ceiling" of the Axis air forces has been a ceiling of hostile bombers and fighters. The landings in Algeria and Morocco were covered by an "umbrella" of protecting planes. Dive-bombers have been mentioned less frequently of late in despatches from Stalingrad. In the Solomons and New Guinea, the ratio of plane losses is running almost unmeasurably heavy against the Japanese.

It was no doubt in view of this mass production in Britain that the United States objective of 60,000 planes this year has been deliberately cut down in order that bigger and longer range bombers can be built. Numbers are to be sacrificed for carrying capacity and flying radius. That would not be done if the Allies were still outnumbered in new planes coming off the building lines.

Whatever turn the war may take in any theatre, it is obvious that planes are to play an increasingly important part in the war, and that long-range bombers are counted on to paralyze the enemy far behind the actual fighting fronts. We can only hope that the planes will be used to their full capacity, and that the enemy will be unable to overcome numerical superiority of the enemy.

Without undue optimism it may be supposed that the "ceiling" of the air war has been turned, and that our flying men on this on will get more planes and more powerful planes than their opponents.

It Did Happen Here

After digging out, more or less, from under the heaviest snow in the history of the city, Edmonton people may realize with clearer perception the advantages they enjoy because of the location of the "beautiful" area in this part of the Dominion.

Not since 1925 had the street railways men had to throw the air out of the streets. Not since motor cars became common did a storm ever before make it practically impossible to operate the cars on the main streets. That Edmonton people have never had to do their traveling on foot was on Saturday a supposition to be laughed at. Not with the snow-shovel of Old Timers has the snow-shovel had to be wielded so vigorously as on Monday morning.

These are conditions which occur not infrequently in Ottawa, Montreal, and points in the Maritime provinces. Hardly a winter passes without reports of a fight area of lower altitude and moister air, and they never get through a winter without considerable interference because of storms.

Trains operating into and out of Edmonton were not tied up by the Sunday blizzard, nor seriously delayed, though such tie-ups are far from unusual in the half of Canada which is supposed to be more favored climatically than the other.

The blockade which resulted was as much due to the fact that heavy snowfall here is infrequent as to the amount which has been piled up. The city is not provided with snow-fighting equipment; and the equipment it has was not brought into use on Sunday, as would have been the case where a heavy fall is expected whenever storm sets in.

The power scrapers which are used to condition the streets in summer could have been kept going on Sunday, plowing traffic lanes along the main thoroughfares at least. Had blockades been common here, and seriously delayed, though such tie-ups are far from unusual in the half of Canada which is supposed to be more favored climatically than the other.

What has happened once may happen again. The winter weather, the city council should take measures to see that another blockade does not result should another abnormal snowfall occur.

Attention having been called to the matter, there should be quicker action in clearing the sidewalks after falls of ordinary proportions.

The Experts Say

By ISABEL ALLAN
OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—Some tips to back the housewife engaged on the home front:

FURNACES—Now is the time to check your furnace. Pass on these tips from the experts to your husband or son. Keep the grate clean and the chimney free of soot. It doesn't damage your furnace. Replace chime pipes regularly. Keep the furnace clear. A new furnace kept in the firebox and used properly will do the job. Fill cracks with cement.

EGGS—For those housewives who aren't sure just what price they should be paying for their eggs, here are a few tips from the Consumer Section of the Prices Board. The maximum price for Grade A large eggs is 60 cents with the exception of the St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, and Sydney, N.S. areas where the price might possibly be a cent higher. In the Toronto area the wholesale price for eggs is 44 cents. In Ontario, 50 cents. In California, 47 cents. In Illinois, 44 cents. The amount of two cents a dozen may be added if eggs are sold in cartons. All lower grades must be sold at relatively lower prices.

BAKED BEANS—A dish the whole family will relish on these chilly evenings, served with brown bread. Marion Harlow of nutrition services suggests them as a meat substitute. They are easy to make and provide vitamin B complex. Mrs. Laura Pepper, chief of test co-ordination, second the idea and says you use the whole beans in soup or sandwiches. Mrs. Pepper says white, navy and pea soups are good. Beans are plentiful and to use them are in season and as a vegetable. Beans are a recipe for bean loaf from her section that should fill the bill. Take four cups cooked beans, one cup bread crumbs, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons tomato ketchup, one egg and a little pepper. Mash the beans, add other ingredients in the order given. Bake in a greased pan in a moderate oven (350-375 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes. Serve hot with tomato sauce (serves six).

HOT WATER—The next time you go into a restaurant that refuses to allow you extra hot water with your tea tell them that the consumer section of the Prices Board says hot water isn't rationed and while only one "serving" of tea is allowed, the customer is at liberty to dilute it according to taste.

ELECTRICITY—Here are a few hints on conserving electricity from the Defence Department, which has taken drastic steps to cut down consumption. Keep all glasses and refrigerators clean with soap and water regularly. Refresh blackened reflectors—use lamps rated at same voltage as designed to sockets. Don't use 250 volt lamps when only 110 volts are available—establish a routine for turning off unneeded lamps in sufficient numbers to maintain installation flexible and prevent operation of unnecessary lamps—install night lights.

For those interested in dramatic direction, the Dramatic Society is planning regular meetings with guest speakers, lectures and discussion periods to start next week on Tuesday evening. Because there are several members of the club who are not taking part in the annual play, "Watch On the Rhine," for them from the club group will be chosen the four competitors for the Inter-Year Play competition to be held in February.

Minute Make-Ups

Try this for renewed wartime energy! Take a hot bath with a creamy scented oil to relax you. Follow this bath with a brisk cold shower. Massage your body with a creamy lotion. Concentrate the massage on the back of the neck and shoulders. Cream mask to your face for a minute. Remove it. Make up. Go back to work—renewed and radiant!

U. S. Women Entertain 30 In West-End

Former residents of San Francisco, recently arrived in Edmonton to take a position with the United States Engineers, Mrs. Juanita Melgar and Mrs. Aurora Cooper, had 30 friends in for a party at the weekend.

Former Americans, residing in the city, and a few Edmontonians, gathered for dancing and games at 118 street, home of the hostesses.

Entertainment was served later, a chorus of college songs and campus comedy selections, conducted by J. McArthur, graduate of the Washington State University, The University of California, "All Hall to California," proved especially popular.

Refreshments were served later, Mrs. Melgar and Mrs. Cooper, who have been through the "Pearl Harbor Blitz" and their husbands, Dr. Cooper and Dr. Melgar, are still thought somewhere in the eastern fighting zone.

At the party were Mr. and Mrs. J. McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Hignett, Karl Hare, George Plummer, William Bishop, John VanVleet.

Mrs. Jessie Johnson, Richard Robinson, Josephine, John Nichols, Miss M. McIntyre, Harold Ermer, Miss Mildred Jacobson, Mrs. Lena Claverton, V. Filippick, and Miss Marie Marshall.

EXPERIMENT STARTED AT PETAWAWA

Horses Replace Gasoline Burners at Military Camp

Not to be out-done by the father-and-son combinations of enlistments in the Canadian Army there are now mother-and-daughter teams joining the Canadian Women's Army Corps. The upper photograph shows Mrs. H. Cummings and her daughter, Emily, who enlisted in the C.W.A.C. at Toronto without making the other aware of each one's plans. The lower picture shows Mrs. L. Haines and her daughter, Virginia, who enlisted together at Toronto. They are from Welland, Ont.

This may be a mechanized war but the fear of gas and fire shortages have decided Army authorities to experiment with horse-drawn vehicles for general duty around camps. Here are pictures of the first horses purchased in this war for the Army. They are now in service at Petawawa Military Camp and were purchased from Gilbert E. Arnold, Grenville, Que. Top picture shows the first group of 10 to go into service, posed with members of the purchasing board and the former owner: Left to right, Dr. A. C. Burt, Simcoe, Dominion veterinary inspector; Sgt.-Major T. Rodger, 4th P.L.D.G., a former cavalry unit; Gilbert Arnold, Grenville, Que.; L. K. Crabb, who represented the Department of Munitions and Supply; Capt. Graham Maybury, 4th P.L.D.G. Centre, a fine team of Percheron grades said to be the best in the group with Mr. Arnold and others of the purchasing board. Bottom, Capt. Maybury looks over a Belgium grade mare.

Off To Africa

It was "destination unknown" when these American soldiers boarded ship at an undesignated port of embarkation. But they soon discovered they were part of the greatest invasion armada in history, which included a protective circle of battleships and other heavy warcraft, carriers, transports, swift motorboats and landing barges. The men did not know their destination until a few hours before they clambered into the barges for the great assault on North Africa.

Happy Anniversary

On the first anniversary of Italy's invasion of Greece, the Greek Air Force in the United Nations' Western Desert army paid a visit to Italian headquarters on the Alamein front. Result of the raid may be guessed from the jubilant group above, shown on their return. They blasted tents and gun nests with cannon and machine guns. Only one plane was lost—and the uninjured pilot walked back to camp.

Victory Loan Goes Over Top, But Keep Punching

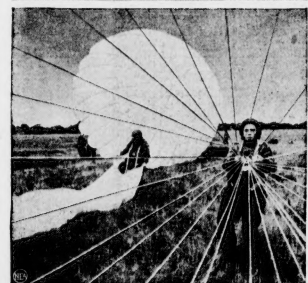

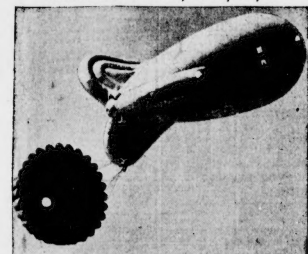

Ammunition costs money—a lot of money—another good reason for buying Victory bonds. Canada's fighting men must be given the tools. Bonds are easier to carry than this 40-pound 3.7 shell on the shoulder of Pte. Evelyn Fraser, left. It costs $22. A $50 Victory bond will buy this whole assembly, right, twice, shell, cartridge and fuse. The $750,000,000 objective has been passed, but more dollars are needed to make more shells. Pte. Fraser holds the fuse in position while Ptes. Jean Wood and Mary Redhead hold shell and cartridge.

Whether starlet Lynda Grey actually is tantalizing a trained goldfish with a water lily, as suggested by a high-powered Hollywood press agent, or merely posing for a picture, the result seems eminently satisfactory.

Chute the Chutes, Army Style

Parachute ballooning out behind the blimp from which he made his first practice jump, above, a parachute trooper training in England heads earthward. Fine point in the art of jumping is learning how to keep the billowing 'chutes from getting into temperamental tangles. Trainees below, have mastered the art.

Canadian Jap-Slappers

Pilot of an R.C.A.F. Kittyhawk fighter climbs aboard his plane before going aloft on a patrol in Alaska. Canada's airmen, serving with those of the United States in the northern outpost, have already drawn Jap blood.

CHAPTER XXVI
When Blythe entered the clothes closet off Nancy Hale's room, she thought herself entirely alone. She had carefully made plans for coming out later with the two gamblers at gun point. But as she pulled the closet door shut on herself, a man spoke in the darkness, then grasped her arm.

Blythe screamed in terror. She didn't have to ask who the man was. She already knew! Indeed, there were two of them in the closet with her, she realized at once. It meant only that she had come up too late to carry out her plan. The gamblers had gotten there ahead of her!

Nevertheless she didn't wilt. All the days of pent-up sorrow and anger seemed now to pour out. Blythe, an athletic coach's daughter, was plenty athletic for herself, though small of stature.

She drove one elbow backward, then right out of his grasp. In the darkness he was fumbling for her again and too, the other man was back in the fight.

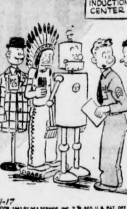

"Hold her, Ed, hold her!" she heard that and heard the answer, "I can't get a hold!"

"Don't do her harm!" "In the one getting harmed—uh... UNH!"

Blythe was making that state of mind when she heard the sound of a door opening. She heard the sound of a door opening. She heard the sound of a door opening.

"Well, I guess this batch winds up the 1-A's in our district."

ment of his wife! From the floor he kicked out truthfully, and a dainty dress found a masculine shirt.

Nancy's dress began to fall on them now. Altogether the clothes, the two men, and the capturing girl made a fantastic kind of triangle in the room.

But at the moment Blythe felt certain she was fighting for her very life. Those gamblers had already threatened Pop and they would know that exposure and capture here would cost them prison sentences. They wouldn't hesitate to kill her if they could.

"Stop... fighting... sister!" one man said, straining. "Give us a chance!"

Blythe struck at the sound with her fist. She felt it hit his cheek. "Ed, for the love Mike, what have we got ourselves here?"

She heard that over the flailing. "Where is she?... Open that door!"

Voices were getting louder. "Lay off, sister, before you get hurt! Okay, Ed, let's rush it!"

They made a concerted push, carrying Blythe, clothes, shoes, some of her Scottie's, and themselves all out into the living room floor in a grand pile-up. It could have been compared to a scrimmage in football.

Blythe was enraged and scared. "Look out, Ed! She's got a gun!" She did still grip the pistol. On impulse she fired it now.

The fellow named Ed dove out on his side in tomorrow's game. But you listen to me now, both of you. We will never what I say. Here's our badge, and you can phone in and verify. We ain't gamblers. We're detectives from the city police bureau!"

maneuver Pop taught his football tacks.

The fierceness of that clash seemed to stun her a little, and when she found her senses again she was sitting on the floor quite unmolested, but she was having a very dramatic scene.

She thought she saw Duane Hagan lift one man bodily and leave him onto the other, then driving both gamblers against the kitchen wall. Then she thought she saw Duane standing over them, still waiting, fists tight. As they threw their heads, halting breath and trying to talk coherently, Duane spoke to her.

"Bly... Bly?" he said. "Are you hurt?"

It wasn't a hallucination, it was still real! "No... They... those men... gamblers... they were..."

"You got it all wrong, sister!" one man managed to say. "Boy, what a punch you two kids carry! Lay off, Hagan—take it easy. I know you... but you don't know us... Sister, we're Duane! Look out! They're desperate! I'm surprised they haven't used guns!"

"Do I have to bash in your brains?" Duane asked. He had lifted one of the floor managers to "give" to the game, son. Listen—your lady friend got us into this!"

"Duane, don't you believe them! They're crooks! Dangerous!" Duane looked confused, but he was waiting for more explanations. One of the men half groaned and made a move to stand up.

"It's a hell of a 'blow', Duane mentioned. 'And I will'!" "Get down, Ed, the other man ordered. The boy ain't lying. But listen, son, I tell you we ain't what you think."

Blythe pointed her finger at them, gesturing. "They're bad!" they were hiding in Nancy's closet! They were! They got here too soon! I found them, said—

One of the men chuckled a little. "You're right, thought, and you said you two brothers are on our side in tomorrow's game! But you listen to me now, both of you. We will never what I say. Here's our badge, and you can phone in and verify. We ain't gamblers. We're detectives from the city police bureau!"

McKenney
On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

Women are taking more interest in tournament bridge each year. When the American Bridge Union was first organized, I was one of those who insisted that the two major events, the pair and team, four championships, should be open only to men. Today women are eligible for all championship events and very often they carry away the honors.

Mrs. G. Elder of Chicago recently won the All-American non-masters individual event, in which a hand was played.

When West doubled Mrs. Elder (North) at four hearts, he no doubt expected to make miscalculation of the contract. But all he made was the top trump. Dummy won the first trick and led a trump, which West won. Now West might have tried coaxing the other trumps and exiting with the ace, in which case Mrs. Elder would have ruffed out his ace of clubs with her last trump. But West chose to try to set up a diamond trick and instead lost his steeper in the suit.

Jews
ARE NOT A UNITED PEOPLE

It is often stated that Jews are always alike together, and that they are a united people. Nothing could be further from the truth, according to Jews themselves, who have a saying, "When two Jews meet, they are to be three opinions." While some Jews are staunch Zionists, others are actually anti-Zionists. Most of them are neither. Some are conservative; some are liberal in political outlook. Jews have never shown aptitude in general. Jews are about like every people, a varied lot. In fact about half the Jews in the United States are not even Jews, since they have no synagogue affiliations. Being a Jew is a matter of religion, not of race.
